MONESSEN IS GIVEN SECOND PLACE AND CHARLEROI THIRD

Only Simplest of Military Tactics Used Owing to Fact That Visiting Companies Were Not Prepared for Technical Work.

REV. FRONTZ PRESENTS CUP TO THE WINNERS

The Monongahela Cadets, in the competitive drill with the Charleroi Brigade and Monessen Sunday School Cadets here yesterday afternon, walked off with all the honors there were to be had, and also with the handsome loving cup given by the three Charleroi banks, and $10 in cash. Monessen came in for second honors, and Charleroi strung along last, although in the opinion of many military men who were present at the drill the Charleroi boy should have had first honors. The judges were Major Henry Coulter, of the Tenth Regiment, and Capt. Henry Welty, a quarter master of the Tenth, both Greensburg men. Col. Coulter, who was to have come, was detained just before starting by some mine trouble in the Greensburg field, where he is financially interested.

The drill was hotly contested. Owing to the fact that the Monongahela and Monessen Brigades have not practiced the more difficult and extremely technical drills, the closed order drills, or the ABC of military evolutions were used The Monongahela brigade showed up especially well in the exercises, and it was through these that they won. In platoon movements, and extended orders, as were afterwards shown by exhibition drills, the Charleroi Boys Brigade were the best trained of the three.

After the drill, which was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever seen on the local baseball field, the brigades marched to Christ Lutheran church, where after a banquet to the three companies, Rev. Chalmers E. Frontz, the pastor, presented the Monongahela Cadets with the cup, the respo se being made by Capt. Harry C. Landefeld of Monongahela. The companies after the banquet returned home, but not without paying many tributes to the local company which were returned with a vigor by Capt. Jolliffe's boys. The Monongahela cadets were under the charge of Capt. Landefeld, the Monessen Cadets under Capt. Newcomer, and the local company under Capt. Jolliffe.

FORMER SUBJECTS OF KING EDWARD MOURN HIS DEATH

Many Living in Charleroi, Who Were Formerly Residents of England.

Owing to the large number of former subjects in Charleroi of King Edward and his beloved mother, Queen Victoria, the death of the King, which was first made known here by the arrival of the Pittsburg morning papers, created widespread interest in this community. The King's death which occurred at 11:45 last night, was supposed to be due to pneumonia, following an attack of bronchitis. His demise took place at Buckingham Place, where he had returned ten days ago from a vacation apparently in the best of health.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the Privy Councillors of the British government will assemble in the throne room of St. James Palace and proclaim the Price of Wales, King Edward's second son, King under the title of George V. The dominant characteristics of the new King are said to be love of country and of home, and it is predicted that his court will be smaller and less representative than King Edward's.

Former Pastor Dies in Germany

Word has been received in Charleroi of the death in Germany of Rev. Emil Seregally, until recently pastor of the Charleroi Holy Ghost Greek Catholic church. He died three hours after his arrival at Oldsberg, Germany, his destination. Rev. Seregally was 42 years old. He spent three years in Charleroi resigning his charge here several weeks ago, on account of failing health. With his duaghter Miss Magdalene, 15 years old, who had been attending the California Southwestern State Normal school, he went to Johnstown, and thence to New York, from where he sailed within a few days for Germany. He intended to go to Hungary, his old home, but before getting farther than Oldsberg, succumbed to his old affection, rheumatism of the heart. The body will be taken to Hungary where interment will be. He was one of he most popular pastors of a foreign church in Charleroi, and many expressions of regret have been heard. He is survived by his daughter, his wife having died some time ago.

ONLY ONE DAY MORE TO WAIT FOR THE CIRCUS

Will Arrive Early and Work of Pitching Tents be Gotten Under Way.

"Circus Day" is so universally welcomed by the average being called human that it has come to be treated as a holiday in whatsoever place a big show pitches its tent.

Charleroi is not immune from the circus fever, and especially when the popular Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Big United show visits here, in which event the keys of the city are practically tuned over to the show. Without casting any reflections upon the permits of other shows, it can be said the Forepaughand Sells Brothers Circus always gives the very best of satisfaction. The liberal applause given almost continuously during its performance eclipsed the applause ever given any other circus.

One day more and this big circus will have arrived on its special trains, and its city of white tents will spring up as if by magic. Its magnificent street parade will traverse the principal streets of the city, the galloping music of its several bands and calliopes will be heard, and the children, the youth, and other people, will spend the day with their circus friends. Next Monday will be Circus Day in Charleroi.

Among the big acts to be seen with the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Shows this year are The Riding Rooneys, Myrie Meers, Karl Handley Troupe; Hines-Kimball Family, Paul Alvaerex Trio, clever and artistic; the Pinchellottes Troupe, unapproachable arenic stars, and a big ensemble of Feature Circus novelties. The class of sixty-one equine High School marvels is a work of art in the way of exceptional horse sense. All new and beautifully rebuilt is the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Big United Shows this year. See the parade at 10 o'clck Monday morning.

EXCITEMENT; NO CARNAGE

All Thrills of Mexican Bull Fight, Without the Usual Loss of Blood.

FRANKS HERE ON FOURTH

Prof. F. B. Franks, who has been engaged to wrestle a bull here July 4, gave an exhibition of this marvellous feat last Saturday evening at Point Marion, where they pitted a wild bull weighing 1,200 pounds against him. The excitement lasted 12 1-2 minutes, during which time Prof. Franks was thrown twice, but came back each time more determined than before. At the end of this 12 1-2 minutes he had the animal down much to the delight of the large crowd that came to see the strong man, pit his strength against the beast. In speakng of the encounter Prof. Franks said:

"I have handled larger bulls than this one, but they were always blessed with two horns, which of course gives a fellow a chance for a good hold. The one at Point Marion only had one and a piece of a horn, which was to his advantage. I don't care how big the one you get for me on the 4th is, so long as he has two good horns."

When asked if he wasn't afraid that some time in one of his encounters with a strong bull that the animal might use its horns on him, the Professor only laughed and said: "Not if I get first hold."

The finance committee is meeting with good success, and expects to finish its work of collecting the money to be used in defraying the expenses of the celebration. All committees are hard at work and everything points to one of the biggest days Charleroi ever had. It is a question how the crowd is to be fed, unless the church or lodges take a hand and serve dinner and supper.

A privilege committee will be appointed next Tuesday night at the meeting to be held in the council chamber at 7:30 at which everybody is earnestly asked to take part and lend their aid to make this a glowing success, as well as a record-breaker in the way of having the biggest crowd of strangers that was ever entertained within our gates.

The mere fact that John Mitchell will be here on that date is guarantee enough that Charleroi will have no less than 15,000 to 20,000 people within its gates, and it is up to the people to make their stay here one long to be remembered and send them away with the desire to come again. Already people are looking forward to the day and date.

Col. A. P. Stewart of the fireworks committee expects to give the fireworks display from a barge on the river. This will give everybody a chance to see the display to the best. There will be an unusual large list of sport for this day. In adiition the local fire companies have invited all other fire companies to come here, and all lodges will be asked to invite all other lodges to participate in the big celebration,

Many Noted Speakers Will be Here Next Week to Take Part.

IN SESSION THREE DAYS

First Meeting Will be Held at First Christian Church on Tuesday Afternoon.

A program of the convention of the Western Pennsylvania Christian Missinary Society, which is to be held in Charleroi on May 10, 11 and 12 has been received here and it contains some good numbers. The convention will open with a session Tuesday afternoon, when a number of fifteen-minute speeches will be made. Tuesday evening the convention sermon will be preached by John L. Morgan of Johnstown. Wednesday morning President R. S. Latimer will make his address, and two minute reports of missionaries will be received. Addresses will be made by other speakers, among which will be one by A. L. Orcut, of Indianapolis, and one by G. W. Knepper, of Wilkinsburg. The womens' session will be held Wednesday afternoon, and on Wednesday evening, two addresses will be made by Crayton S. Brooks of New Castle, and Fred M. Gordon of Knoxville.

The principal morning address on Thursday will be by Rev. G. W. Woobdury of Belle Vernon. State Superintendent W. G. Winn of Sunday schools will preside at the afternoon session, and several addresses will be made, one by Rev. E. A. Cole, of Washigton, who goes to St. Louis soon. This session will be the Bible School session and the Young People's session will be held in the evening, when the State Superintendent, Christian Endeavor superitendent C. M. Watson will preside.

MOTHER'S DAY WILL BE OBSERVED BY THE WEARING OF FLOWERS

Sunday will be observed in Charleroi as "Mother's Day," and every man and boy will be expected to wear a flower of some kind, a white carnation if possible, in honor of his mother. In some of the churches it is likely that special services will be held in commemoration of the day.

King Edward VII.

"The king is dead; long live the king!" By the death of King Edward VII, and the acccession of his son to the British throne as King George V, this expression is applicable to the British public today. The quite autonomy which marked the accession of the new ruler is in marked contrast to the troubulous conditions of some of the monarchies of Europe, and is a striking demonstration of the stability of the English government.

King Edward VII was one of the prominent figures of the present century. As the son of his mother, the late Queen Victoria, and heir apparent to the British throne, he was very much in the public eye before his accession, which came to him when he had passed the meridian of life. A diplomat and a statesman by training, and possessed of rare tact, native shrewdness and good judgment, he understood conditions and people and was able at all times to act in accord with the popular sentiment of his dominion. Had England been a republic King Edward would have been the unanimous choice of the pepole as a chief executive, and few public men of that realm would have measured up to the requirements so effectually as he.

From both his father and his mother King Edward inherited sound judgment and good sense. Our country owes much to the late Prince Albert, consort of the late Queen and father of King Edward. In the dark days of the Civil War, when the British ministry was hostile to the United States government, the Prince consort was the firm friend of our government, and on his death bed he exhorted the Queen not to be led by her ministry to espouse the cause of the Confederacy. This influence is said to have had the effect of keeping the British government neutral in that struggle, which also prevented other European coalitions. This, and other kindly offices on the part of the British dynasty in the reigns of both King Edward and his illustrious mother, Queen Victoria, has cemented the Anglo-Saxon nations in a common bond of friendship, and the people of the United States unite today with their brethren across the seas in mourning the death of a beloved ruler.

Mother's Day.

By the blossomings of white carnations tomorrow one will know those who honor and revere their mothers. Sunday, May 8, has been designated as Mother's Day, and those who desire to observe it are exhorted to wear a white flower—preferably a white carnation—in honor of the occasion. In addition to this, those who inaugurated the movement exhort all who are absent from their former homes to write a letter to their mother and express in words the sentiment shown by the insignia.

This anniversary should touch a responsive chord. It expresses a beautiful sentiment, and while it should not require a public reminder of filial duties, it should mark a new beginning where these duties have been neglected. In this busy era of human activities, sentiment is too often forgottten. This is why the impression prevails that human nature is growing more selfish and sorbid, and that in the past friendships were deeper and the ties of kindred more seriously regarded. The family is the unit of all that is good and holy, and these ties are too soon severed by death to be thoughtlessly cast aside in this brief span of life. Therefore let every one observe Mother's Day, and let the observance become regular instead of periodical.

No Slate.

With an even dozen candidates contesting for the Republican nominations for Assembly in Washington county, where but three can be nominated all talk about slates and frame-ups is the sheerest nonsense. These candidates represent a variety of communities throughout the county, and while charges may be freely made that certain candidates represent certain elements, the field is open and free and the ones who get the most votes will win. The voters by their ballots will make the nominations.

This is in marked contrast to the days of the Acheson regime when Legislative candidates were slated and presented at the so-called primary elections where the vote of a corporal's guard of heelers counted for the full vote of a precinct. This method of making nominations was practcailly the same as counting a quorum by the Speakers in Congress, a process that seems particularly abhorrent to Mr. Acheson, now that he is no longer a part of the machine. The nominations now are in the people's hands, and it is an insult for Mr. Acheson to claim that a majority of the voters of Washington county are corruptible because they do not vote at his bidding.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

"Dodging an issue" is a political phrase, not a baseball term.

WHEN WOMEN REGISTER.

A Hotel Clerk Explains Why a Blotter Is Necessary.

"Hotel clerks get to be great observers of human nature," said an old hotel lobbyist. "During the many hours out of each day that I spend warming this chair I have learned many tricks of their trade which go to prove my statement.

"In fact, this clerk here has a peculiar trick of his own which shows how keen an observer he is. If you watch him at work you will find whenever a woman is registering he holds a blotter so as to hide the other names on the page. At first when I noticed it I thought that he was merely holding the blotter in readiness to use it on the newly written name, but when I found that he did it only when a woman was registering my curiosity got the better of me, and I asked the reason.

"'Why,' said he, 'women are the most nervous creatures in the world. I hold that blotter up to show that I am not watching them write their names and at the same time to keep them from trying to excel the other handwriting on the page. If they noticed that I was watching them closely it is a safe bet that they would get nervous and make an awful botch of their signatures trying to be fancy. On the other hand, if they saw a particularly pretty signature on the next line the chances are that they would try to improve theirs with a flourish or two, which generally means a choice blot to be scratched out by yours truly.'

"I decided to test his theory by looking over a woman's shoulder while she registered. The result was just what he said it would be."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE BEY'S GUEST.

He Was Ready For the Emergency and Conquered the African.

A show of force is often the best kind of diplomacy. A writer in the Paris Temps tells a story of the French admiral Dupetit Thouars, who had been intrusted with the mission of exacting reparation from an African bey who had insulted a French consul.

As Dupetit-Thouars' demands were supported by the forcible argument of loaded cannon, the bey acknowledged that he had been too hasty and proffered profuse apologies. He even invited the admiral to his table and had a sumptuous repast prepared for his guest.

The consul warned the admiral to be on his guard.

"The bey is inclined to be malicious," said he, "and when he strokes his beard and smiles you may be sure that he is concocting some mischief."

"We shall see," was Dupetit-Thouars' reply.

He reached the bey's palace in good time. Profuse compliments and salutations were exchanged. All at once the admiral's foot met some soft, hairy substance lying on the carpet under the table. He bent down and saw a huge lion showing his formidable teeth. The bey smiled and stroked his beard.

Dupetit-Thouars did not wince, but called his dragoman.

"My pistols," was all he said.

The servant saluted, retired and brought back a pair of pistols on a silver tray. The admiral took them and placed them on the table before him. But the bey, still smiling, continued to stroke his patriarchal beard.

"Tell the commander," he said to the dragoman, "that if those pistols are for the purpose of blowing out my lion's brains they are quite insufficient and perfectly useless."

Then, like a skilled fencer countering his opponent's thrust, after the bey's ironical advice had been translated Dupetit-Thouars replied:

"Tell his highness that my pistols are not there to kill his lion, but to blow his own brains out at the first movement of this objectionable carpet."

Gravely, but a little pale, the man interpreted.

The smile died away on the bey's lips, and he no longer stroked his beard.

"My lion," said he, "is too well trained even to scratch one of my guests, but since he is not wanted he shall be sent away."

At a word from the bey the lion slowly and heavily left the room, like an obedient dog.

RHEUMATIC TWINGES.

Before These Pains Get a Hold Take Precautions.

Rheumatism is now considered by many doctors to be a blood disease and should be treated by rigid dieting. Medicines, at least in the first stages, are less effective than curbing the appetite.

If one is of rheumatic tendency she should eat little or no red meat, cut out sugar, bread, sweets and acid fruits and should drink plenty of water.

This may seem like a severe treatment for a small complaint, at the first only twinges. Neglected, they mean untold suffering, often complete disablement.

It would be a good thing for those of us who are inclined to take rheumatic twinges lightly to recall the definition of the late Dr. Spurgeon, himself a great sufferer from rheumatism and gout. "If you put your hand into a vise and let a man press as hard as he can, that is rheumatism; if he can be got to press a little harder, it is gout."

Before that vise gets such a hold it cannot be loosed, take precautions. Dieting may not be pleasant, but it is pleasanter than being a rheumatic victim with only oneself to blame.

A son of J. F. Anderson who is serving the United States Navy is at home on a furlough.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

It is said that more coats in black and white, tan and gray, will be worn than in pinks and blues and colors.

Lime green is one of the new shades.

Lace gowns for evening are being trimmed with quillings and flower designs of narrow satin ribbon.

Evening coats and wraps are nearly all made with sleeves. There is no tremendous variety about them. They are nearly all three-quarter length either plaited or cut circular, so as to fall in ample folds.

The boas and neck ruffs are of endless variety. They are always becoming and as far as can be foretold there is no end to their future existence. They are made of every color and design of chiffon net, tulle, lace, mousseline and malines.

The striped velvets and velutinas are very beautiful. An exquisite material of finest voile, with a three-quarter inch wide stripe of velvet, comes in several lovely shades. A violet verging on plum, a bronze green, taupe fawn and a rich blue are some of the best colors.—New York Post.

OLD CADIZ.

Once Richer Than London, Its Chief Business Now Is Salt.

Of Cadiz, De Amicis said, "It is best described by writing the word 'white' with a white pencil on blue paper."

Under the noonday sun, seen from the lofty Torre de Vigia, the mediæval watchtower in the center of the city, its buildings are dazzling and almost encircled by the blue sea. A long, narrow isthmus like the stem of a pipe leads from San Fernando, on the mainland. Cadiz rests on the bowl of the pipe—yes, a pure white meerschaum without coloring, though 3,000 years old.

Americans may justly regard this now decadent place with compassion, because it grew to greatness by its commerce with the new world—while Spain ruled the Americas—and then fell away into decay on the loss of the western possessions.

It was great before Rome was founded. And as late as 1770 it was wealthier than London. Commerce has ever been its life. Today its chief business is the production of salt for export. This humble staple, evaporated in countless shallow lagoons in wide spreading marshes, still keeps Cadiz in touch with the new world, as most of the salt is shipped to South America.

The natives pronounce Cadiz with "z" silent and "a" very broad—"Ca-di." That has always been its name, with slight variations. Its Phœnician and Tyrian founders called it Gadir, a castle of fastness. The Romans called it Gades. The Arabs had it Kadis.—Detroit News-Tribune.

Worth Knowing.

To remove blood stains from cloth saturate with peroxide and after standing a little while wash in warm water.

Windows may be cleaned free from ice and polished by rubbing the glass with a sponge dipped in alcohol.

To remove iron rust from linen apply muriatic acid, rub it well, then the stains will disappear; then rinse thoroughly. Use a little ammonia in first water to counteract acid.

To Mend Underwear.

To mend knit underwear turn wrong side out and whip together closely all rents and worn places, stretch carefully and add a patch of some old knit goods over the whole whipped portion. Then darn down on right side with darning cotton or woolen yarn. This insures a nice looking and serviceable darn.

Candied Apples.

Put a cupful of brown sugar with a little water on to boil and when it threads dip sound tart apples in the candy and cover thickly. Put a stick in the apple to hold by.

TO THE VOTERS OF WASHINGTON AND GREENE COUNTIES:

I have announced myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of State Senator from the 46th District, and solicit the influence and support at the primaries on June 4th of the Republican voters therein. Four years ago I was a candidate for this office and received the nomination from Washington county. Greene county also nominated a candidate and we were obliged to meet under the old conferee system. While I might have made it impossible for the conferees to come to any decision in the choice of a nominee other than myself, I gave way in the matter, as I preferred first that the District be made Republican and that perfect harmony be secured among the Republicans of the new District. After this I did everything in my power to aid the party candidates and feel that I have a strong claim on the voters of this District.

I am doing everything that I can to carry my campaign personally to the people. I am going directly to the voters both in person and by letter, and am not maintaining luxurious apartments to which the voters are invited to come, but am going myself to their places of abode, to the farm, the mine and the factory and am having a chat with as many of them as possible. I hold that there is nothing undignified in thus taking my cause direct to the people as they are the sovereign power and I think it more proper that the candidate should go to the people than that the people should come to the candidate

If nominated and elected I shall be entirely free from promises and pledges of any entangling nature. This much I can promise, however—that in event of my success as I shall be required to take a solemn oath to support the Constitution of the Nation and State, that I shall do so with a deep obligation of all that it implies and shall faithfully endeavor to fulfill all that the oath means. I pledge myself further to give at any and all times, to every man, white or black, rich or poor, nigh or low, a fair and impartial hearing upon any measure in which he may be interested and I will conscientiously strive to do the very best I can for the State at large and for the people of the 46th District.

I am not interested in any line of business that would be furthered or helped in any way by my acquaintance with the political leaders of the State and my sole desire shall be to do what I can for the people and not for any special class or interest. I am

Very truly yours,

A. H. ANDERSON.

MONESSEN IS GIVEN SECOND PLACE AND CHARLEROI THIRD

Only Simplest of Military Tactics Used Owing to Fact That Visiting Companies Were Not Prepared for Technical Work.

REV. FRONTZ PRESENTS CUP TO THE WINNERS

The Monongahela Cadets, in the competitive drill with the Charleroi Brigade and Monessen Sunday School Cadets here yesterday afternoon, walked off with all the honors there were to be had, and also with the handsome loving cup given by the three Charleroi banks, and $10 in cash. Monessen came in for second honors, and Charleroi strung along last, although in the opinion of many military men who were present at the drill the Charleroi boy should have had first honors. The judges were Major Henry Coulter, of the Tenth Regiment, and Capt. Henry Welty, a quartermaster of the Tenth, both Greensburg men. Col. Coulter, who was to have come, was detained just before starting by some mine trouble in the Greensburg field, where he is financially interested

The drill was hotly contested. Owing to the fact that the Monongahela and Monessen Brigades have not practiced the more difficult and extremely technical drills, the closed order drills, or the ABC of military evolutions were used The Monongahela brigade showed up especially well in the exercises, and it was through these that they won In platoon movements, and extended orders, as were afterwards shown by exhibition drills, the Charleroi Boys Brigade were the best trained of the three.

After the drill, which was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever seen on the local baseball field, the brigades marched to Christ Lutheran church, where after a banquet to the three companies, Rev. Chalmers E Frontz, the pastor, presented the Monongahela Cadets with the cup, the respo se being made by Capt. Harry C. Landefeld of Monongahela. The companies after the banquet returned home, but not without paying many tributes to the local company which were returned with a vigor by Capt. Jolliffe's boys. The Monongahela cadets were under the charge of Capt Landefeld, the Monessen Cadets under Capt. Newcomer, and the local company under Capt. Jolliffe.

FORMER SUBJECTS OF KING EDWARD MOURN HIS DEATH

Many Living in Charleroi, Who Were Formerly Residents of England.

Owing to the large number of former subjects in Charleroi of King Edward and his beloved mother, Queen Victoria, the death of the King, which was first made known here by the arrival of the Pittsburg morning papers, created widespread interest in this community. The King's death which occurred at 11:45 last night, was supposed to be due to pneumonia, following an attack of bronchitis His demise took place at Buckingham Place, where he had returned ten days ago from a vacation apparently in the best of health.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the Privy Councillors of the British government will assemble in the throne room of St. James Palace and proclaim the Price of Wales, King Edward's second son, King under the title of George V. The dominant characteristics of the new King are said to be love of country and of home, and it is predicted that his court will be smaller and less representative than King Edward's.

Former Pastor Dies in Germany

Word has been received in Charleroi of the death in Germany of Rev Emil Seregally, until recently pastor of the Charleroi Holy Ghost Greek Catholic church He died three hours after his arrival at Oldsberg, Germany, his destination. Rev. Seregally was 42 years old. He spent three years in Charleroi resigning his charge here several weeks ago, on account of failing health. With his duaghter Miss Magdalene, 15 years old, who had been attending the California Southwestern State Normal school, he went to Johnstown, and thence to New York, from where he sailed within a few days for Germany. He intended to go to Hungary, his old home, but before getting farther than Oldsberg, succumbed to his old affection, rheumatism of the heart. The body will be taken to Hungary where interment will be. He was one of he most popular pastors of a foreign church in Charleroi, and many expressions of regret have been heard He is survived by his daughter, his wife having died some time ago.

ONLY ONE DAY MORE TO WAIT FOR THE CIRCUS

Will Arrive Early and Work of Pitching Tents be Gotten Under Way.

"Circus Day" is so universally welcomed by the average being called human that it has come to be treated as a holiday in whatsoever place a big show pitches its tent.

Charleroi is not immune from the circus fever, and especially when the popular Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Big United show visits here, in which event the keys of the city are practically tuned over to the show. Without casting any reflections upon the permits of other shows, it can be said the Forepaughand Sells Brothers Circus always gives the very best of satisfaction The liberal applause given almost continuously during its performance eclipsed the applause ever given any other circus.

One day more and this big circus will have arrived on its special trains, and its city of white tents will spring up as if by magic. Its magnificent street parade will traverse the principal streets of the city, the galloping music of its several bands and calliopes will be heard, and the children, the youth, and other people, will spend the day with their circus friends Next Monday will be Circus Day in Charleroi.

Among the big acts to be seen with the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Shows this year are The Riding Rooneys, Myrie Meers, Karl Handley Troupe; Hines-Kimball Family, Paul Alvaerex Trio, clever and artistic; the Pinchellottes Troupe, unapproachable arenic stars, and a big ensemble of Feature Circus novelties. See the parade at 10 o'clck Monday morning.

FRANKS HERE ON FOURTH

Prof. F. B. Franks, who has been engaged to wrestle a bull here July 4, gave an exhibition of this marvellous feat last Saturday evening at Point Marion, where they pitted a wild bull weighing 1,200 pounds against him. The excitement lasted 12 1-2 minutes, during which time Prof. Franks was thrown twice, but came back each time more determined than before At the end of this 12 1 2 minutes he had the animal down much to the delight of the large crowd that came to see the strong man, pit his strength against the beast. In speakng of the encounter Prof Franks said.

"I have handled larger bulls than this one, but they were always blessed with two horns, which of course gives a fellow a chance for a good hold The one at Point Marion only had one and a piece of a horn, which was to his advantage. I don't care how big the one you get for me on the 4th is, so long as he has two good horns."

When asked if he wasn't afraid that some time in one of his encounters with a strong bull that the animal might use its horns on him, the Professor only laughed and said: "Not if I get first hold."

The finance committee is meeting with good success, and expects to finish its work of collecting the money to be used in defraying the expenses of the celebration. All committees are hard at work and everything points to one of the biggest days Charleroi ever had It is a question how the crowd is to be fed, unless the church or lodges take a hand and serve dinner and supper.

A privilege committee will be appointed next Tuesday night at the meeting to be held in the council chamber at 7 30 at which everybody is earnestly asked to take part and lend their aid to make this a glowing success, as well as a record-breaker in the way of having the biggest crowd of strangers that was ever entertained within our gates.

The mere fact that John Mitchell will be here on that date is guarantee enough that Charleroi will have no less than 15,000 to 20,000 people within its gates, and it is up to the people to make their stay here one long to be remembered and send them away with the desire to come again. Already people are looking forward to the day and date.

Col. A. P. Stewart of the fireworks committee expects to give the fireworks display from a barge on the river. This will give everybody a chance to see the display to the best. There will be an unusual large list of sport for this day. In adiition the local fire companies have invited all other fire companies to come here, and all lodges will be asked to invite all other lodges to participate in the big celebration.

MOTHER'S DAY WILL BE OBSERVED BY THE WEARING OF FLOWERS

Sunday will be observed in Charleroi as "Mother's Day," and every man and boy will be expected to wear a flower of some kind, a white carnation if possible, in honor of his mother. In some of the churches it is likely that special services will be held in commemoration of the day.

King Edward VII.

"The king is dead; long live the king!" By the death of King Edward VII, and the accession of his son to the British throne as King George V, this expression is applicable to the British public today. The quite autonomy which marked the accession of the new ruler is in marked contrast to the troubulous conditions of some of the monarchies of Europe, and is a striking demonstration of the stability of the English governmen .

King Edward VII was one of the prominent figures of the present century. As the son of his mother, the late Queen Victoria, and heir apparent to the British throne, he was very much in the public eye before his accession, which came to him when he had passed the meridian of life. A diplomat and a statesman by training, and possessed of rare tact, native shrewdness and good judgment, he understood conditions and people and was able at all times to act in accord with the popular sentiment of his dominion. Had England been a republic King Edward would have been the unanimous choice of the people as a chief executive, and few public men of that realm would have measured up to the requirements so effectually as he.

From both his father and his mother King Edward inherited sound judgment and good sense. Our country owes much to the late Prince Albert, consort of the late Queen and father of King Edward. In the dark days of the Civil War, when the British ministry was hostile to the United States government, the Prince consort was the firm friend of our government, and on his death bed he exhorted the Queen not to be led by her ministry to espouse the cause of the Confederacy. This influence is said to have had the effect of keeping the British government neutral in that struggle, which also prevented other European coalitions. This, and other kindly offices on the part of the British dynasty in the reigns of both King Edward and his illustrious mother, Queen Victoria, has cemented the Anglo-Saxon nations in a common bond of friendship, and the people of the United States unite today with their brethren across the seas in mourning the death of a beloved ruler.

Mother's Day.

By the blossomings of white carnations tomorrow one will know those who honor and revere their mothers. Sunday, May 8, has been designated as Mother's Day, and those who desire to observe it are exhorted to wear a white flower—preferably a white carnation—in honor of the occasion. In addition to this, those who inaugurated the movement exhort all who are absent from their former homes to write a letter to their mother and express in words the sentiment shown by the insignia.

This anniversary should touch a responsive chord. It expresses a beautiful sentiment, and while it should not require a public reminder of filial duties, it should mark a new beginning where these duties have been neglected. In this busy era of human activities, sentiment is too often forgotten. This is why the impression prevails that human nature is growing more selfish and sorbid, and that in the past friendships were deeper and the ties of kindred more seriously regarded. The family is the unit of all that is good and holy, and these ties are too soon severed by death to be thoughtlessly cast aside in this brief span of life. Therefore let every one observe Mother's Day, and let the observance become regular instead of periodical.

No Slate.

With an even dozen candidates contesting for the Republican nominations for Assembly in Washington county, where but three can be nominated all talk about slates and frame-ups is the sheerest nonsense. These candidates represent a variety of communities throughout the county, and while charges may be freely made that certain candidates represent certain elements, the field is open and free and the ones who get the most votes will win. The voters by their ballots will make the nominations.

This is in marked contrast to the days of the Acheson regime when Legislative candidates were slated and presented at the so-called primary elections where the vote of a corporal's guard of heelers counted for the full vote of a precinct. This method of making nominations was practcailly the same as counting a quorum by the Speakers in Congress, a process that seems particularly abhorrent to Mr. Acheson, now that he is no longer a part of the machine. The nominations now are in the people's hands, and it is an insult for Mr. Acheson to claim that a majority of the voters of Washington county are corruptible because they do not vote at his bidding.

WHEN WOMEN REGISTER.

A Hotel Clerk Explains Why a Blotter Is Necessary.

"Hotel clerks get to be great observers of human nature," said an old hotel "lobbyist." "During the many hours out of each day that I spend warming this chair I have learned many tricks of their trade which go to prove my statement.

"In fact, this clerk here has a peculiar trick of his own which shows how keen an observer he is. If you watch him at work you will find whenever a woman is registering he holds a blotter so as to hide the other names on the page. At first when I noticed it I thought that he was merely holding the blotter in readiness to use it on the newly written name, but when I found that he did it only when a woman was registering my curiosity got the better of me, and I asked the reason.

"'Why,' said he, 'women are the most nervous creatures in the world. I hold that blotter up to show that I am not watching them write their names and at the same time to keep them from trying to excel the other handwriting on the page. If they noticed that I was watching them closely it is a safe bet that they would get nervous and make an awful botch of their signatures trying to be fancy. On the other hand, if they saw a particularly pretty signature on the next line the chances are that they would try to improve theirs with a flourish or two, which generally means a choice blot to be scratched out by yours truly.'

"I decided to test his theory by looking over a woman's shoulder while she registered. The result was just what he said it would be."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE BEY'S GUEST.

He Was Ready For the Emergency and Conquered the African.

A show of force is often the best kind of diplomacy. A writer in the Paris Temps tells a story of the French admiral Dupetit Thouars, who had been intrusted with the mission of exacting reparation from an African bey who had insulted a French consul.

As Dupetit-Thouars' demands were supported by the forcible argument of loaded cannon, the bey acknowledged that he had been too hasty and proffered profuse apologies. He even invited the admiral to his table and had a sumptuous repast prepared for his guest.

The consul warned the admiral to be on his guard.

"The bey is inclined to be malicious," said he, "and when he strokes his beard and smiles you may be sure that he is concocting some mischief."

"We shall see," was Dupetit-Thouars' reply.

He reached the bey's palace in good time. Profuse compliments and salutations were exchanged. All at once the admiral's foot met some soft, hairy substance lying on the carpet under the table. He bent down and saw a huge lion showing his formidable teeth. The bey smiled and stroked his beard.

Dupetit-Thouars did not wince, but called his dragoman.

"My pistols," was all he said.

The servant saluted, retired and brought back a pair of pistols on a silver tray. The admiral took them and placed them on the table before him. But the bey, still smiling, continued to stroke his patriarchal beard.

"Tell the commander," he said to the dragoman, "that if those pistols are for the purpose of blowing out my lion's brains they are quite insufficient and perfectly useless."

Then, like a skilled fencer countering his opponent's thrust, after the bey's ironical advice had been translated Dupetit-Thouars replied:

"Tell his highness that my pistols are not there to kill his lion, but to blow his own brains out at the first movement of this objectionable carpet."

Gravely, but a little pale, the man interpreted.

The smile died away on the bey's lips, and he no longer stroked his beard.

"My lion," said he, "is too well trained even to scratch one of my guests, but since he is not wanted he shall be sent away."

At a word from the bey the lion slowly and heavily left the room, like an obedient dog.

RHEUMATIC TWINGES.

Before These Pains Get a Hold Take Precautions.

Rheumatism is now considered by many doctors to be a blood disease and should be treated by rigid dieting. Medicines, at least in the first stages, are less effective than curbing the appetite.

If one is of rheumatic tendency she should eat little or no red meat, cut out sugar, bread, sweets and acid fruits and should drink plenty of water.

This may seem like a severe treatment for a small complaint, at the first only twinges. Neglected, they mean untold suffering, often complete disablement.

It would be a good thing for those of us who are inclined to take rheumatic twinges lightly to recall the definition of the late Dr. Spurgeon, himself a great sufferer from rheumatism and gout, "If you put your hand into a vise and let a man press as hard as he can, that is rheumatism; if he can be got to press a little harder, it is gout."

Before that vise gets such a hold it cannot be loosed, take precautions. Dieting may not be pleasant, but it is pleasanter than being a rheumatic victim with only oneself to blame.

PRES. JOHNSTON ANNOUNCES CHANGE

Tuesday—First Presbyterian vs. Baptists.

Wednesday—Catholics vs Washington Avenue Presbyterans.

President Johnston announces that he has secured the sevices of Tax Collector J. W. Mathias of Charleroi and 'Squire Harry Scot of North Charleroi to officiate as umpires.

Mrs. George W. Cooper of Fallowfield avenue has returned from Tarentum, where she spent several days as the guest of Mrs. Berdette Harrison.

A son of J. F. Anderson who is serving the United States Navy is at home on a furlough.

Miss Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McMahan, is convalescent after a severe attack of measles.

Henry Rose, brother of Mrs. John Barthole of Crest avenue spent a few days here returning home Friday.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

It is said that more coats in black and white, tan and gray, will be worn than in pinks and blues and colors.

Lime green is one of the new shades.

Lace gowns for evening are being trimmed with quillings and flower designs of narrow satin ribbon.

Evening coats and wraps are nearly all made with sleeves. There is no tremendous variety about them. They are nearly all three-quarter length, either plaited or cut circular, so as to fall in ample folds.

The boas and neck ruffs are of endless variety. They are always becoming, and as far as can be foretold there is no end to their future existence. They are made of every color and design of chiffon, net, tulle, lace, mousseline and malines.

The striped velvets and velvetinas are very beautiful. An exquisite material of finest voile, with a three-quarter inch wide stripe of velvet, comes in several lovely shades. A violet verging on plum, a bronze green, taupe, fawn and a rich blue are some of the best colors.—New York Post.

OLD CADIZ.

Once Richer Than London, Its Chief Business Now Is Salt.

Of Cadiz, De Amicis said, "It is best described by writing the word 'white' with a white pencil on blue paper."

Under the noonday sun, seen from the lofty Torre de Vigia, the mediaeval watchtower in the center of the city, its buildings are dazzling and almost encircled by the blue sea. A long, narrow isthmus like the stem of a pipe leads from San Fernando, on the mainland. Cadiz rests on the bowl of the pipe—yes, a pure white meerschaum without coloring, though 3,000 years old.

Americans may justly regard this now decadent place with compassion, because it grew to greatness by its commerce with the new world—while Spain ruled the Americas—and then fell away into decay on the loss of the western possessions.

It was great before Rome was founded. And as late as 1770 it was wealthier than London. Commerce has ever been its life. Today its chief business is the production of salt for export. This humble staple, evaporated in countless shallow lagoons in wide spreading marshes, still keeps Cadiz in touch with the new world, as most of the salt is shipped to South America.

The natives pronounce Cadiz with "z" silent and "a" very broad—"Ca-di." That has always been its name, with slight variations. Its Phoenician and Tyrian founders called it Gadir, a castle of fastness. The Romans called it Gades. The Arabs had it Kadis.—Detroit News-Tribune.

TO THE VOTERS OF WASHINGTON AND GREENE COUNTIES:

I have announced myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of State Senator from the 46th District, and solicit the influence and support at the primaries on June 4th of the Republican voters therein. Four years ago I was a candidate for this office and received the nomination from Washington county. Greene county also nominated a candidate and we were obliged to meet under the old confered system. While I might have made it impossible for the conferees to come to any decision in the choice of a nominee other than myself, I gave way in the matter, as I preferred first that the District be made Republican and that perfect harmony be secured among the Republicans of the new District. After this I did everything in my power to aid the party candidates and feel that I have a strong claim on the voters of this District.

I am doing everything that I can to carry my campaign personally to the people. I am going directly to the voters both in person and by letter, and am not maintaining luxurious apartments to which the voters are invited to come, but am going myself to their places of abode, to the farm, the mine and the factory and am having a chat with as many of them as possible. I hold that there is nothing undignified in thus taking my cause direct to the people as they are the sovereign power and I think it more proper that the candidate should go to the people than that the people should come to the candidate

If nominated and elected I shall be entirely free from promises and pledges of any entangling nature. This much I can promise, however—that in event of my success as I shall be required to take a solemn oath to support the Constitution of the Nation and State, that I shall do so with a deep obligation of all that it implies and shall faithfully endeavor to fulfill all that the oath means. I pledge myself further to give at any and all times, to every man, white or black, rich or poor, nigh or low, a fair and impartial hearing upon any measure in which he may be interested and I will conscientiously strive to do the very best I can for the State at large and for the people of the 46th District.

I am not interested in any line of business that would be furthered or helped in any way by my acquaintance with the political leaders of the State and my sole desire shall be to do what I can for the people and not for any special class or interest. I am

Very truly yours,

A. H. ANDERSON.
